For Immediate Release—February 26, 2010—Hyannis, MA-- Starting March 15, 2010, Manhattan gets a lot closer to Lebanon, New Hampshire and the Upper Valley with Cape Air's new service between Lebanon Municipal Airport and Westchester County Airport in White Plains, New York, which includes complimentary ground transportation into Midtown Manhattan. "There is no faster way from the Upper Valley to mid-town Manhattan," says Cape Air's Vice President of Planning, Andrew Bonney. "When your flight lands in White Plains Cape Air has complimentary ground transportation standing by to take you directly to Midtown. With two daily nonstop round trips and seamless connections into the city the new service is designed with the business traveler in mind, enabling same-day round trips for business or pleasure."

"Having been a regular passenger on previous NY flights out of Lebanon, I look forward to the cost and time efficiency that will be provided by the new Cape Air flights," said Lebanon Mayor Georgia Tuttle. "Including car service directly from the plane into downtown NYC as part of the fare is a great benefit and will make air travel relaxing once again."

Lebanon Airport Manager Richard Dymant said, "Since April, I have heard the repeated desire from the Upper Valley for service to New York. I am very excited that Cape Air is providing the Upper Valley with the best of both worlds from the Lebanon Municipal Airport; the fastest trip at a very low fare to Midtown Manhattan through White Plains, and superior domestic and international connections through Boston.”

“Reliable transportation to New York City is important not only for the Dartmouth community of students, faculty, alumni, parents, and visitors, but also for many people who work, live, or visit the Upper Valley. We believe this new service from Cape Air strengthens this important travel corridor and look forward to it benefitting the entire region,” said Peter Glenshaw, Director of the Community Relations at Dartmouth College.

In addition to the new Manhattan destination, Cape Air’s Lebanon service to Boston continues with four daily round trips, scheduled to maximize connections. Steps from Cape Air’s Boston gate passengers can enjoy the convenience of nonstop flights to more than 30 JetBlue cities and with the new Cape Air/JetBlue Airways partnership your entire trip can be booked at expedia.com or by calling 1-866-Cape-Air. You can also check your bags in Lebanon and find them waiting for you at your final JetBlue destination.

More information at 866-Cape-Air (866-227-3247) where there is never a charge to talk to a live Cape Air reservations agent. Fares on Lebanon – White Plains are $159.50 each way including all taxes and fees. Commuter books (a transferrable ten-pack of one-way tickets) are $1,099, inclusive of all taxes and fees (the equivalent of $109.90 each way).
